As president of the Arlington St. Vincent de Paul Conference, I have the pleasure of serving my community and neighbors in times of need. I am passionate about SVDP’s work because we not only provide financial assistance to those in emergency situations, but we also provide friendship and kindness to those who find themselves in need.

“ I volunteer at Edu-Futuro whose mission is to provide immigrant students resources to access higher education. More recently, I’ve assisted my sister with an initiative to foster leadership skills among young students in Lima, Peru. I support these educational initiatives because in the words of Toni Morrison, “If you are free, you need to free somebody else.”

Time spent helping others is time well spent.
My parents got my family involved in a lot of volunteer work growing up, so I’ve enjoyed feeling like I’m making a difference while carrying on that legacy.

“ I love witnessing dogs’ transformations when I have earned their trust, and they realize they are safe and loved. While it is always hard to say goodbye, it brings me joy knowing I was able to foster dogs to help them find a loving home. It’s also great to see how excited a family is to adopt! (And puppy snuggles make any bad day better!) ”

As a volunteer with So Others Might Eat (SOME), I am grateful for the opportunity to lend my creativity to raising awareness about the vital work this organization does in the District. I am proud to be able to offer my time to amplify SOME’s mission of breaking the cycle of poverty and homelessness through their programs and services.
